LOUIS D. HUDDLESTON

QUALIFICATIONS

Mr. Huddleston is the RLM Communications, Inc. Vice President for Strategic Planning and Business Development. He joined RLM in May of 2005 to oversee strategic planning and business development initiatives attendant to assuring company growth and capabilities expansion. He is responsible for the day-to-day planning and coordination needed to ensure RLM's capabilities and resources are effectively aligned to business opportunities and the needs of our customers.

Mr. Huddleston brings a wealth of experiences and background to RLM. He is a seasoned executive with more than twenty-five years of experience as a senior leader, planner and manager. He is highly experienced in organizing and leading large-complex organizations in demanding environments. He has a strong track record in operations, strategic planning, policy formulation and implementation, business development, information assurance, command, control communications, computers and intelligence (C4I), disaster relief, crisis response operations, and domestic and international negotiations.

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Retained National Security Advisor and Consultant, 2004-2005
Battelle Memorial Institute, Columbus, Ohio

Served as a business consultant on retainer with the National Security Division of the Battelle Memorial Institute. Principal responsibilities entailed providing expert advice and assistance on national security matters related to government contracting and business development in the areas of defense research and development, procurement and acquisition, technology transfer, installation security and force protection, information technology, special operations forces technology requirements and homeland security.

Chief of Staff and Strategic Planner, 2003-2004
Battelle Memorial Institute Office of Homeland Security, Arlington, Virginia

Led a major corporate strategic initiative to plan, organize and activate a homeland security business market sector for the Battelle Memorial Institute in the Washington, DC area. This was a budgeted $5 million initiative that included developing strategic goals and objectives; a comprehensive FY04 business plan for five distinct marketing directorates responsible for Information Analysis-Infrastructure Protection, Science and Technology, Borders and Transportation Security, Emergency Protection and Response and Department of Defense contracting opportunities. Agro-Security/Agro-Terrorism business development was established as a special government contracting opportunity for the market sector. FY04 business volume and sales goals were set at $30 million. By the end of FY04 both business volume and sales exceeded $50 million.

Chief Advisor and Liaison Officer to U.S. Central Command, 2002-2003
Headquarters, U.S. Central Command, Tampa, Florida

As the deployed field commander's representative, I assembled a 15-member team of multi-functional staff officers who assisted the Commander Central Command with planning and operations in Afghanistan and Iraq. This broad-gauged team covered the full spectrum of staff activities that included; operations, planning, intelligence, force protection, personnel management, information and security management, communications and logistics. Operations under my direction involved high-level interface on a routine basis with other government agencies and 44 partner nations. Over a six-month period, I was instrumental in facilitating information and data flow needed by the Field Commander, Commander Central Command, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Secretary of Defense and President in their efforts to synchronize national-level policy and operational-tactical execution in Afghanistan and planning for operations in Iraq.

Assistant Chief of Staff, 2000-2002
Headquarters, XVIII Airborne Corps, Fort Bragg, North Carolina

Staff director for strategic planning, organization structuring, development and integration of new equipment, concepts and doctrine into experimental and modernization programs. Responsibilities involved maintaining good business relations with industry. Led a four-month formal staff process to finalize executive strategic guidance; then, formulated and implemented a long-range strategic plan for an 85,000-member organization. Led a task force of functional department representatives in developing a plan to integrate approximately 40 new and modernized systems into the organization as part of the U.S. Army Transformation Plan.

Executive Officer/Assistant, 1998-2000
Office of the Under Secretary of the Army, The Pentagon

Served as principal advisor to the Under Secretary of the Army with responsibilities for planning and coordinating staff activities in the areas of organization structuring, material acquisition, science and technology research, crisis-emergency response, budget formulation-execution, human resource management, and information management-assurance. These activities often entailed interaction with industry and various governmental entities at local, state and national levels.

Executive Officer/Assistant, 1997-1998
Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations and Contingency Plans, The Pentagon

Staff manager for the largest and most complex directorate in Headquarters, Department of the Army. Facilitated staff communications, coordination and plans between four operations divisions, 29 subordinate specialized divisions, and eight field-operating agencies worldwide. Expertly assisted in coordinating staff activities of the Army's Chief Operating Officer and his principal division executives during execution of a $65 billion operating budget. Coordination included prioritization of research and development, acquisition, staffing, equipping, and training for a 485,000-person workforce.

Division Chief, Current Operations, 1996-1997

Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations and Contingency Plans, The Pentagon

Monitored current operations and reporting of all U.S. Army forces worldwide. Supervised a 30-person senior staff and the Army Operations Center. Developed and executed numerous deployment plans for service members and equipment to critical locations. Executed a $37 million budget for implementing U.S. nuclear, biological, and chemical disarmament treaty obligations. Implemented the first-time use of a new computer-based automated Global Command and Control System to monitor and support domestic and international operations.

Deputy Chief of Staff, 1994-1996

Office of the Commander in Chief, U.S. Southern Command, Republic of Panama

Directed an 800-person staff responsible for national security interests throughout Central, Latin and South America in support of military operations in 19 countries. Led a project to relocate a major military headquarters to Miami, Florida. Relocation included initial development and coordination of a $97 million construction budget for the new headquarters facility. Conducted extensive liaison with local government, business, and civic leaders during the relocation process.

Commander, Light Airborne Infantry Brigade, 1993-1994

Fort Clayton, Republic of Panama

Commanded and directed a diverse 200-person staff responsible for 1,400 forward-deployed and geographically dispersed personnel throughout Panama, Central and South America. Exercised command responsibility for crisis response and security of the Panama Canal. Supported U.S. commercial and trade interests throughout the region by demonstrating technology capabilities to foreign officials and their business communities. Led movement of an 800-person organization from Panama to Suriname to construct and operate a 5,000-person refugee camp supporting U.S. efforts in Haiti, to include execution of a $12 million refugee relief-operating budget.

Current Operations Officer, 1991-1993

Office of the Chairman, Joint Chiefs of Staff, The Pentagon

Upon graduating as the National War College Distinguished Graduate, served as a member of the Chairman, Joint Chiefs of Staff coordinating and liaison staff. Represented Chairman Powell and Joint Chiefs in the Washington Interagency on sensitive national security matters. Over a two-year period, prepared numerous written directives, strategies and policies for personal release by the Chairman and Secretary of Defense. Frequently, and on short-notice, flawlessly prepared Presidential, Vice Presidential, Secretary of Defense and Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff correspondence. On various operational matters served as liaison to the Department of State, CIA, FBI, FEMA, INS, DEA, ONDCP, and various Senate and House committees.
