RE: Recommendations concerning Board of Governors policies on administrative separation and/or retreat to the faculty

Recent events have brought unprecedented attention to long-standing University practices and policies that allow senior administrators who hold tenure the right to retreat to a faculty position when they retire or otherwise step down from their administrative posts. I agree wholeheartedly with Chairman Gage that it is time for the Board of Governors to revisit its existing policies on the subject.

First, a bit of background: While retreat rights have been an accepted practice throughout American higher education for many decades, the Board of Governors first addressed them from a policy perspective for senior leaders below the chancellor level in 2003. In an effort to increase the competitiveness of UNC campuses in recruiting senior administrators and to bring greater consistency to how the long-standing practice was being applied across the campuses, the Board of Governors adopted Policy 300.1.6, which required every Board of Trustees to adopt a policy governing the separation and/or retreat of administrators. Accompanying guidelines allow for an administrator's retreat to the faculty at a nine-month salary commensurate with the salaries of comparable faculty members. The chancellor, at his or her discretion, may also provide the retreating administrator with up to one year of paid leave at full administrative salary in order to retool and prepare for a return to teaching and research responsibilities. Any agreement that continues all or partial administrative pay for more than one year requires the approval of the Board of Trustees. A parallel policy covering senior administrators in the Office of the President was adopted by the Board of Governors in 2004.

In fall 2005, shortly before my arrival as president, the Board of Governors adopted a related policy specific to the administrative separation of the president and chancellors. Under Policy 300.1.6.2, if the chancellor or president has served in the CEO role for at least five years, he or she may retreat to a nine-month faculty position on a UNC campus at 60% of his or her ending administrative salary following a one-year research leave at full administrative salary.

[Copies of these policies are attached for your information.]

I am well aware that policy-making is the venue of the Board of Governors and the president is charged with executing Board policy. But having witnessed the benefits and shortcomings of these specific policies and guidelines for more than three years now, I feel compelled to share some general observations. Without question, retreat rights to the faculty and an accompanying leave (with pay) in order to retool are standard throughout higher education. The practice is well documented within UNC since the formation of the 16-campus University under Bill Friday (and probably long before). I am persuaded that it is still absolutely required for our University to be competitive in today's marketplace. That said, I have come to believe that our policies may be slightly more generous than those of public universities elsewhere—both in the length of leaves permitted and their levels of pay. Furthermore, I strongly believe that our current policies incorporate too little accountability—from both a prior approval and work product standpoint—and need more definition of what is required of a retreating administrator during the research leave and after his or her return to the faculty. Finally, our continuing review of campus separation agreements suggests that on some campuses, transition practices for departmental chairs who return to the faculty may not comply with current Board of Governors policy.

The Board of Governors has a responsibility to balance the need for competitiveness with what is appropriate and affordable in a time of limited resources. As you grapple with these difficult policy decisions in the weeks and months ahead, I offer the following recommendations:

1. As standard practice, retreating senior administrators who have held such a position at the institution for at least five years should be eligible for a paid leave of up to six months at an appropriate faculty salary, followed by a retreat to the faculty at that salary.
2. There should be up-front agreement of what work product is expected during the paid leave, as well as what workload expectations will be following retreat to the faculty (e.g., normal teaching load and/or research activity).
3. All administrator retreats and associated leaves should require approval by the appropriate Board of Trustees (if below the level of chancellor) or Board of Governors (if at the chancellor, president, or UNC vice president level).
4. Before a retreat for any individual administrator is granted, the Board of Trustees (or Board of Governors, if applicable), should see a summary of ALL terms of retreat and associated costs for ALL campus administrators currently in retreat status.
5. Under exceptional circumstances, paid leaves might be extended beyond six months (up to one year), but ONLY with Board of Governors approval. Likewise, granting a leave to an administrator with less than 5 years service should be done only under exceptional circumstances and should not be done without Board of Governors approval.

6. Currently employed chancellors and senior administrators—who assumed their positions relying on past practice—should be grandfathered under existing policies, so long as the terms of such an administrator's retreat are consistent with the Board of Governors policies that were in place at the time he or she assumed his or her administrative post and the terms are approved by the appropriate Board of Trustees (if below the level of chancellor) or the Board of Governors (if at the chancellor, president, or UNC vice president level).

Thank you for your consideration. Tightening the policy will require more careful monitoring and reporting to ensure that all campuses adhere to the policy. We will make sure that occurs.

If you have questions or concerns, please feel free to give me a call. I look forward to your discussion at the August board meeting.

Policy on Administrative Separation

This policy applies to all staff in the Office of the President whose positions are covered by Policy 300.1.1 of the Policy Manual of the Board of Governors, and is consistent with Policy 300.1.6. This policy applies to both voluntary and involuntary relinquishment of administrative positions.

1. Retreat to a faculty position. An administrator, who holds a faculty appointment at a University of North Carolina campus, may assume or return to that appointment with all the rights and responsibilities of faculty in the home department, unless a proceeding is initiated to discharge or demote the administrator from the faculty position. Conditions of the retreat to such a position will be governed by the policy in place on the campus.
2. Reappointment of an administrator to a different position. An administrator leaving a position that is categorized as "at will" has no claim to that position; however, there may be circumstances in which assignment to another administrative position or appointment to less than a full-time position would be beneficial for both the institution and the employee. In these cases, the new salary should be appropriate to the assignment. If the President proposes to pay the administrator his or her full current salary after moving the administrator to a position that would normally be lower paying, or if paid leave is to be granted, the agreement with the administrator must be approved by the Board of Governors. This Policy does not supersede any notice or severance pay required by Board of Governors' policy.
3. Separation from the University. In some cases, it may be in the best interests to negotiate a severance agreement with an administrator. UNC policy addresses timely notice for termination of Senior Administrative and Academic Officers hired pursuant to Policy 300.1.1, I.B. In accordance with The University of North Carolina Policy 300.1.1, III.B, in certain circumstances these employees are entitled to notice of the discontinuation of their employment with full pay up to 90 days or severance pay, depending on their length of service. The President may, at his or her discretion, determine that the circumstances justify continuing full pay for employees subject to Policy 300.1.1.I.A for up to 90 days. Any agreement that results in a longer period of compensation must be approved by the Board of Governors.
4. Retirement. Nothing in this Policy shall prevent an administrator from retiring or an administrator who holds a faculty appointment from participating in phased retirement consistent with existing University of North Carolina policies.
5. Agreements. All agreements made pursuant to this policy must be in writing and signed by both the employee and the President.
6. Effective Date. The effective date of this policy is February 13, 2004.

Administrative Separation of the President and Chancellors

1. Retreat to a faculty position: If a chancellor resigns from the position of chancellor, or if the president resigns from the position of president, after having served in that position for at least five years, if the chancellor or the president will assume a tenured or non-tenured faculty position at a constituent institution of the University of North Carolina, and if there is not good cause to terminate the chancellor's or the president's service at the time that the chancellor or president resigns, then the chancellor or president will receive a one year research leave at the chancellor's or the president's most recent administrative salary. Non-salary compensation such as a house and an automobile will not be continued during the one year research leave.

At the end of the research leave, the chancellor or president will assume the faculty position with a nine month appointment, with duties and responsibilities in accordance with departmental expectations. The initial annual faculty salary will be the greater of 60% of the most recent annual administrative salary or a salary that is commensurate with the salaries of comparable faculty members in comparable positions.

2. Separation from the University. In some cases, a chancellor or a president may not be assuming a faculty position. It may be in the best interest of the University and a chancellor for the University to negotiate a severance agreement with a chancellor. In these circumstances, the president may, at the president's discretion, determine that the circumstances justify providing severance pay in the amount of the chancellor's full administrative pay for up to 90 days. Non-salary compensation such as a house and an automobile will not be continued during this period of full compensation, although the president may allow the chancellor a reasonable amount of time to vacate the chancellor's house. Any agreement that results in a longer period of compensation must be approved by the Board of Governors.

The Board of Governors may, in its discretion, negotiate a severance agreement with a president who is resigning and is not assuming a faculty position.

3. Separate agreement: If the Board of Governors enters into a written agreement with a president or a chancellor, the terms of that agreement shall supersede this policy.

Policy on Administrative Separation and/or Retreat to a Faculty Position

Every Board of Trustees and the Board of Governors must establish a policy governing separation and/or retreat of administrators. Conditions of employment for chancellors or the President are not a part of this policy. Policies must address both voluntary and involuntary relinquishment of administrative positions and must include specific language referring to the retreat of those administrators who hold a tenured faculty position. The President has the authority to establish severance terms and conditions for Senior Academic and Administrative Officers who are members of the President's staff in accordance with the policy of the Board of Governors, and the Chancellors have the authority to establish severance and retreat terms and conditions for Senior Academic and Administrative Officers at their respective constituent institutions, in accordance with the policy of the Board of Trustees and Regulations or Guidelines established by the President. Campus policies must be approved by the President, and the Office of the President policies must be approved by the Board of Governors.

Regulations on Administrative Separation and/or Retreat to a Faculty

1. Retreat to a faculty position. An administrator who holds a concurrent tenured faculty appointment may return to that appointment with all the rights and responsibilities of faculty in the home department, unless a proceeding is initiated to discharge or demote the administrator from the faculty position. If there has been an administrative stipend during the appointment, that stipend should be removed. The salary will be adjusted from a 12-month administrative salary to a 9-month or 12-month faculty salary that is commensurate with the salaries of comparable faculty members. At the chancellor's discretion, the chancellor may provide for a reasonable period of time with full administrative salary to provide an opportunity for the employee to prepare for teaching and research responsibilities. The reasonable period of time should be related to the time spent in administrative duties. If the chancellor proposes to pay the administrator full or partial administrative pay after the termination of the administrator's administrative duties for longer than one year, the agreement must be approved by the Board of Trustees of the constituent institution.
2. Reappointment of an administrator without faculty retreat rights. An administrator leaving a position that is categorized as "at will" has no claim to a position at the university; however, there may be circumstances in which assignment to another administrative or teaching position would be beneficial for both the institution and the employee. In these cases, the new salary should be appropriate to the assignment. If a chancellor or the president proposes to pay the administrator his or her full administrative salary after moving the administrator to a position that would normally be lower paying, or if paid leave is to be granted, the agreement with the administrator must be approved by the Board of Trustees of the constituent institution or by the Board of Governors for employees of the Office of the President or the General Administration. This Guideline does not supersede any notice or severance pay required by Board of Governors' policy.
3. Separation from the University. In some cases, it may be in the best interests of the institution to negotiate a severance agreement with an administrator. UNC policy addresses timely notice for termination of Senior Administrative Academic Officers hired pursuant to Policy 300.1.1, I.B. In accordance with The University of North Carolina Policy 300.1.1, III.B, in certain circumstances these employees are entitled to notice of the discontinuation of their employment with full pay for up to 90 days or severance pay, depending on their length of service. A chancellor or the president may, at his or her discretion, determine that the circumstances justify continuing full pay for employees subject to Policy 300.1.1.A for up to 90 days. Any agreement that results in a longer period of compensation must be approved by the appropriate Board of Trustees or the Board of Governors for employees of the Office of the President or General Administration.
4. Retirement. Nothing in these guidelines shall prevent an administrator from retiring or an administrator who holds a faculty appointment from participating in phased retirement consistent with existing University of North Carolina policies.

Explanatory Notes

Additional Separation Agreements Spreadsheet

2004-2009

All UNC campuses were recently asked to provide to UNC General Administration information on separation agreements for senior administrators at the level of Dean or above that were paid from State funds. That information was shared with you previously.

The campuses have now been asked to disclose all separation agreements paid from all sources of funds. This supplemental reporting shows that an additional $2 million was spent University-wide on separation agreements during the 2004-2009 period.

WCU and NCSSM had no separation agreements of any sort during this period to disclose.

All separation agreements at ECU, ECSU, FSU, NCSU, UNCA, UNCG, UNCSA and WSSU were disclosed in the previous report (all Deans or above, all State funds).

Seven UNC campuses and UNC General Administration have now reported additional separation agreements, as summarized below:

Additional separation agreements reported by ASU totaled $266,095, representing agreements with 12 department chairs over the five-year period. ASU resets the 9-month base salary when an administrator returns to the faculty (the adjusted salary will also reflect routine salary increases, including funds provided to reach the 80th percentile of peers). Based on a campus policy that appears to be inconsistent with BOG policy 300.1.6[R], ASU also continues to provide all or part of a former department chair's administrative stipend for up to 8 years. The length of time that the stipend is retained is dependent upon the length of time that the individual served as department chair. None of these department chairs were granted research leaves prior to resuming their faculty roles.

The additional amount reported by NCA&T was $17,587. This reflects the amount paid from non-state funds for former Chancellor Battle's research leave.

The amount reported by NCCU was $21,833, reflecting stipend payments to one department chair.

At UNC-CH, the amount reported is $775,650. Included in this total was $227,670 of non-State funds used primarily for research leaves provided to deans and department chairs over the five-year period. The remainder was for leaves and/or payments from state funds for department chairs, senior associate deans, and one program director. In general, when department chairs at UNC-CH step down and return to their faculty roles, their new base salary is calculated by first removing the administrative stipend and then adding a salary adjustment to reflect prior service as a chair and other more routine salary increases. The departmental chairs listed on the spreadsheet for Chapel Hill are shown for one year only, the year that they retreated.

UNCC's amount was $155,334, reflecting six-month research leaves for two department chairs and the executive director of international programs.

UNCP's amount was $5,182, reflecting the retention of administrative stipends for three former department chairs. UNCP routinely folds the stipend into the retreating chair's adjusted faculty salary.

UNCW's total was $772,906, reflecting 6-month research leaves (consistent with appointment letters) for several department chairs and associate deans who left their administrative posts and returned to the faculty. Their faculty salaries were set consistent with agreements authorized by the prior administration, essentially allowing most department chairs to retain a high percentage of their administrative salaries. Chancellor DePaolo has established and is adhering to a policy that is consistent with BOG policy. $6,500 of the above total was paid from non-State funds.

UNC General Administration's reported total was $7,516, reflecting a separation agreement with an assistant director at the Center for School Leadership Development.

The policies and practices at ASU, UNC-CH, and UNCP should be reexamined to ensure that they are in full compliance with Board of Governors policy. The Board of Governors should also consider clarifying what levels of administrators are eligible for research leaves of any duration and/or the continuation of a stipend (of any type or amount) upon return to the faculty.
