

2011 UNC Peer Study Overview

September 26, 2011

The last peer study conducted by UNC was in 2006. Since 2006 there have been many changes across higher education, both inside and outside the state of North Carolina. The 2011 peer study provides the opportunity to reassess campus peers using more recent national data and considering current economic realities. The recommended peers for each campus are a result of extensive campus review of potential peers and discussions with Academic Affairs at UNC General Administration.

How will peers be used?: Peers will be used as comparison points in areas such as:

- tuition and fees
- retention and graduation rates
- faculty salaries
- faculty workload and teaching load
- space utilization
- faculty diversity
- endowments
- financial aid
- budget
- fiscal measures such as sources/types of revenues/expenditures

What is a “peer”?: The July 2009 Association for Institutional Research (AIR) / National Center for Education Statistics (NCES) Fellowship Report by Matthew Solder provides an excellent summary of what a peer is (see http://airweb.org/images/Soldner\_Final\_Report\_2010.pdf):

There are four distinct types of peers: (a) competitor, (b) peer, (c) aspirational, and, (d) predetermined/jurisdictional (Hurley, 2002). Each type’s name implies the nature of the relationship between the home institution and its group of comparators, and can include institutions that are seen as direct competitors, institutions that are similar on one or more dimensions but may not share a common market, institutions to which the home institution aspires to become more like, and institutions that are de facto or de jure peers, such as fellow members of a state system.

Sources of data to identify peers: The Peer Selection Tool (PST), developed by UNC GA’s Office of Institutional Research & Analysis, uses the U.S. Department of Education’s Integrated Postsecondary Education Data System (IPEDS) and included 74 variables. The majority of the variables are from the 2009-2010 collection cycle. Campuses were permitted to use other sources of national level data such as the National Science Foundation.

Number of peers: 15-18; no more than 2 from a state without approval; do not use other UNC campuses as peers; select 2-4 aspirational peers.

Public vs. private peers: public peers are expected; recommendations for a private peer must be well justified.
