MEETING OF THE BOARD OF GOVERNORS Committee on Historically Minority-Serving Institutions

DRAFT MINUTES

January 18, 2023 Via Videoconference and PBS North Carolina Livestream UNC System Office 223 S. West Street, Board Room Raleigh, North Carolina

This meeting of the Committee on Historically Minority-Serving Institutions was presided over by Chair Reginald Holley. The following committee members, constituting a quorum, were also present: Lee Barnes, Kellie Hunt Blue, James L. Holmes Jr., and Sonja Nichols.

Chancellors present were Chancellor Johnson Akinleye, Chancellor Darrell Allison, Chancellor Robin Cummings, Chancellor Karrie Dixon, and Chancellor Harold Martin.

Staff members present included Dr. Shun Robertson from the UNC System Office.

1. Call to Order and Approval of Minutes (Item A-1)

The chair called the meeting to order at 3 p.m. on Wednesday, January 18, 2023, and called for a motion to approve the minutes of Wednesday, October 19, 2022.

MOTION: Resolved, that the Committee on Historically Minority-Serving Institutions approve the minutes of Wednesday, October 19, 2022, as distributed.

Motion: Sonja Nichols Motion carried

2. Historically Minority-Serving Institution (HMSI) Budget Priorities (Item A-2)

The Committee on Historically Minority-Serving Institutions heard a presentation from Jennifer Haygood, senior vice president for Finance and Administration for the UNC System Office, on the 2023-25 budget priorities and their implications for our historically minority-serving institutions as they pursue the System's strategic plan goals. Among the priorities is a new Completion Assistance Program that will provide aid to students who are on track to graduate but are in danger of dropping out because of financial shortfalls. This idea was first presented during October's HMSI committee meeting on risk management.

3. Roundtable Discussion: Discussion on Historically Minority-Serving Institution (HMSI) Athletics (Item A-3)

The committee explored the role athletics play in our HMSIs and how their programs benefit the state. The committee was joined by all six of the HMSI athletic directors for the conversation. Mr. James DuBose, from Elizabeth City State University, explained how his institution has a focus on athletic academic excellence and is preparing athletes for life after athletics. Ms. Etienne Thomas, the athletic director at Winston-Salem State University, noted that many athletes are choosing STEM and health care majors—programs that are critical to the System's strategic plan goals and the state's workforce needs. Mr. Earl Hilton, athletic director at North Carolina A&T State University, shared how participation in athletics helps the academic progress of athletes. Student athletes have much higher graduation rates than their nonathlete peers, and this is particularly true for African American male and female athletes.

Dr. Louis Perkins, from North Carolina Central University, called athletics the "front porch of the university." It serves as an outlet for pride for students, increases student recruitment opportunities, opens the door to financial giving, and is a way to engage a much more diverse community. Mr. Anthony Bennett, athletic director for Fayetteville State, noted the 50th anniversary of Title IX and the importance of remaining competitive and ensuring all athletes have an equitable, quality experience that includes academic and mental health support. Mr. Dick Christy, from UNC Pembroke, ended the discussion by noting that thousands of students across North Carolina dream of wearing a UNC System institution jersey and the pipeline is growing. He recommended greater policy flexibility and financial support to meet the demand.

Situation: The Committee on Historically Minority-Serving Institutions will discuss the impact of state investments in the System's HMSIs in recent years and how those investments have strengthened the universities.

Background: North Carolina's support of the System's historically minority-serving institutions contributes to a skilled workforce, fostering innovation and economic growth. By reducing financial barriers, these investments promote social mobility, allowing more North Carolinians the opportunity to access higher education, pursue careers in high-demand fields, and contribute to society.

Assessment: The chancellors of each of the six historically minority-serving institutions will share how they use state funds to improve their campus, increase student success, and support

North Carolina's economy.
